WELCOME TO 14th ABU DHABI WOUND CARE CONFERENCE in Collaboration with

INTERNATIONAL INTERPROFESSIONAL WOUND CARE GROUP

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

On behalf of the IIWCG Executive Board and ADWCC organizing committee, it is with great pleasure that we welcome you in Abu Dhabi for the 14th ADWCC Conference.

As the world is slowly returning to a new normal after the COVID-19 pandemic, networking, in-person-contact and collaborative learning are but a few of the missing needs voiced by many health care practitioners. As many of us were working in isolation throughout the pandemic focusing to get through the situation as unscathed as possible, in hindsight we now realize how lonely those two years have proved themselves to be.

Within seven days of opening the abstracts for this conference, 24 completed abstracts were already submitted and is still pouring in to date. That urged the organizing committee to relook the program and add additional streams to accommodate the high demand for active participation in this conference, clearly expressed as a need. That was when the committee decided to create this conference in such a manner that it serves as an update to compensate for two lost years of person-to-person learning. Moreso, to share new insights on creative problem-solving, share novel approaches and new techniques learnt necessitated by adapted practice in that time.

The ADWCC two-day conference is organized every year for the past 13 years in Abu Dhabi and with each year it grew to be more than the year before. Participants from all over the world find this a popular and significant conference to join as a learning and CME opportunity to discuss the most important topics and advances in wound care. Moreso, to share valuable friendships built over years. For the 14th Conference we aim for all of this and even more as we have added a short course on Diabetic foot prevention and management into the mix as well. The program is vibrant, stimulating and creative with the voices from the bedside practitioner this year, in the forefront. That is supported by an expert international faculty coming from 50 countries, giving participants more than 100 sessions to personalize and tailor-make their own learning experience. All attendees will have the opportunity to visit and explore Abu Dhabi. A city capturing the hearts of many visitors with its warm sea water and vast dessert dunes at each end of the experience spectrum. Add to this the natural springs with its own serene beauty, the modern amenities, traditional cuisine and futuristic entertainment, and this conference becomes an integral part of a lovely few days spent, remembered for long afterwards.

We are sure that ADWCC 2023 will be an opportunity for all to share learning, make new friends and experience the laughter and joy so telling of this conference!

We wish you a memorable stay in UAE!

I have developed my own small business by providing my expertise to professionals in health care (regarding wound healing and tissue repair). I have worked with over eighty customers, ranging from hospitals, students, nursing homes, home health institutions. But also for businesses (e.g. Johnson & Johnson, Smith & Nephew, Mölnlycke, Lohmann & Rauscher, ConvaTec, Woulgan, Synergie, Essity and many others); Wound care Communities (WCS, Saffier NTVW, Nefemed, Nursing) and publishers as Reed Business Elsevier (Springer) and Bohn Stafleu van Loghem. I have chaired several professional groups (e.g. Dutch Health Insurers, expert panel on disinfection and sterilisation of flexible endoscopes in Dutch hospitals, and nursing conferences). Being a 'contentguy', I aim to drive things to a higher level (both care standards and professionals). Top notch products and technologies are as important as the people who work with them. Science (= truth), quality and "common sense" are more important than "political or social desirability". Patient care comes first and cannot be set aside for any other purpose. Helping and seeing professionals grow by providing them with state-of-art knowledge, insights and products is the most rewarding aspect of my life.
